Regents affect students

Julie K. Paine
Staff Writer

When it comes to what the Board of Regents does, most students are uniformed and confused

The Board of Regents is made up of 12 members who are chosen by the legislature with one regent for each of the eight congressional districts, leaving four-at-large regents.

One of the four at large regents must either be a University of Minnesota student, from any campus, or a recent graduate of the university.

The president of the university, currently Kenneth Keller, is also the ex-officio president of the board.

The present members have varied backgrounds but have one common link -- having an interest in the university. The positions are for six-year terms but are WITHOUT pay

The board is autonomous from the university but the board governs the university: setting the rules and regulations, controlling expenditures and acting upon any and all staff changes. Simply put, a change in tuition, a change in grading changes or a change in faculty has to be approved by the Board of Regents before being implemented.

The Board of Regents' monthly meeting took place this past Oct. 9-10 on the coordinate campus in Crookston, Minn.

In December 1984, UMD was given a gift of land on Mirror Lake. The condition of sale on the land was that if the land was sold, the money received had to go to supportive services program. The property was put up for sale but no bids were received which lead to the land being listed with an agency. It then sold for $103,000. The Board of Regents approved the sale at the meeting and supportive services should soon be getting the money.

The Twin Cities' regents brought up discussion about going to a semester system. Although UMD was not directly mentioned nor were any other specifics, changes in this area

Change proposed for Bull Pub

Jeff Plombon
Staff Writer

The 1987 Bull Pub area is not what it was just four months ago. A subtle change is evident, and there may be much more in store for this student study area.

As of the new school year the noticeable changes have been few. All the tables and chairs are new, one wall is gone and the former vending area is now an open space for more studying.

There are plans to find a better use of the Bull Pub space. According to Neale Roth, coordinator of Student Activities, there is a plan to find out what the students want and to meet that demand in deciding what to do with the space.

The Kirby Program Board (KPB) hired a company to create a plan to make better use of the Bull Pub space. This firm came up with the idea of having a dry bar and lounge.

Roth said the plans include a glass atrium to provide more light, a raised dance floor and an arrangement of tables to look much like that of some local bars. The dance floor will be where the fireplace is now, and the atrium will face Burntside Hall with the opening facing the dance floor, Roth said.

These plans are only in the proposal stage, because KPB has not yet decided how the space will be used. The board wants to hear student opinions before they make a decision.

The Bull Pub is down to one vending machine and one microwave. At one time there were two pop machines, coffee and a counter space with plastic silverware. With the decrease in machines, attraction to the Bull Pub has decreased.

Sophomore Karen Bianchi said "I pass through the Bull Pub once in a while, but it always seems noisy, messy, smokey, and bland. If they decide to redecorate, they should add color, more vending and comfortable furniture. Other than that, I am glad the school is interested in providing an area for fun and socializing."

Student Association asks for student input

Diane Wain
Staff Writer

The main topic discussed at the Student Association meeting Oct. 6 was the possible remodeling of the Bull Pub, which has not been remodeled in 20 years.

Scott Skibness, coordinator of Kirby Program Board, said KPB is considering using money from the Kirby Capital Improvement Fund to remodel the Bull pub, which may be turned into a dry bar.

Skibness, who spoke at the meeting said the new dry bar would be a place for students to socialize, dance and order non-alcoholic beverages.

The room would remain "multipurpose," however, because it would still be used as a quiet study space during day school hours.

This idea is catching on all over the country with the new drinking age of 21.

"We need to let students know who we are and what we're trying to accomplish for them."

Who's News

UMD News Service

John B. Carlson, professor of biology, retired from the teaching staff of UMD. Since joining the faculty in 1954, he has taught classes in general biology, basic and advanced botany and plant anatomy. He has also done extensive research on plant morphology, particularly in the area of soybeans, which has resulted in several publications.

Mabel Schauland, assistant professor of education, retired from the teaching staff of UMD. A 1945 graduate of UMD, Schauland joined the faculty in 1954. She headed the special education department for two years beginning in 1982. Throughout her career she had a special interest in educational programs for the mentally retarded. She helped set up the first group home for the mentally retarded in Duluth and subsequently was involved in setting up several semi-dependent and independent group homes in the area as well as the first church for the mentally retarded.

Gloria DeFilippis Brush has been named acting dean of the School of Fine Arts at UMD. An associate professor of art, she has served as head of the Department of Art since 1985, and is a past executive director of the Arrowhead Regional Arts Council. Brush has been a UMD faculty member since 1981 and has many of her photographs published in national magazines and exhibited throughout the nation. She succeeds Richard Durst as acting dean.

Ernest Meyer has been named acting superintendent of UMD Plant Services. Meyer, principal plant engineer, replaces Norman Rick, who is on an extended vacation and will retire in December.

Paul C. Royce, dean and professor of physiology and clinical sciences at the UMD School of Medicine resigned effective September 30 to accept a position at Monmouth Medical Center in Long Branch, NJ. He came to UMD in 1971 and had been dean of the School of Medicine since January 1982. Royce substantially increased research grants for the Medical School and was producer and moderator for "Doctors on Call," WDSE-TV's locally-produced weekly show that features three area physicians who join Royce in discussion of a medical topic.

James Boulger, associate dean for administration and student affairs in the School of Medicine, has been named interim dean of the school pending regents' approval. Boulger also served as acting dean in 1975 and 1980.

Safe sex important to healthy relationship

Amy J. Carroll
News Editor

In the modern world of AIDS, sexually transmitted diseases (STDs) and date rape, healthy relationships should be a concern of everyone. In October the Student Health Clinic and Mini-Apple are focusing on healthy relationships and sexuality.

"Lifestyle choices students make now can have serious consequences later in life without them even knowing it," said Tammy Rendon-Orth, the Student Health Clinic's health and wellness instructor.

With AIDS, STDs and date rape incidents rising, education about these things is important.

"Intercourse is no longer safe. It's Saf-ER sex that needs to be talked about," Orth said.

The Student Health Clinic (SHC) is offering many services to educate students about healthy relationships. These run from pamphlets on sexually transmitted diseases and date rape to AIDS and STD testing.

For example, many students don't know that the SHC can give AIDS tests for $14. Results are found out in a couple of days.

The SHC also gives chlamydia tests for $10. Chlamydia is an STD that can cause sterilization in women when their Fallopian tubes become infected. Orth said that 27 percent of the women they test at the SHC test positive for chlamydia, but if caught early it can be reversed.

The SHC also sells birth control. Costs are: $2 for contraceptive foam and/or jelly, $5 for diaphragms, $3 for filling birth control pill prescriptions, and three condoms for 75 cents, also available at the Mini-Apple.

The Mini-Apple is sponsoring Healthy Relationship workshops on Oct. 21 and 28 at 3 p.m., and also offers a free AIDS computer program.

A five-session self esteem group has been formed at the Health Clinic. The group meets Wednesdays from 3-4:30 p.m.

"Studies have shown that people use their bodies as a substitute for psychological, spiritual and unconditional love and intimacy. Low self-esteem has a lot to do with how people see themselves in relationships," Orth said.

Orth said the AIDS scare has let other diseases, such as herpes, go unnoticed in recent years. The National Center for Disease Control in Atlanta has estimated that 33,000 people catch an STD every day.

"The only way to be absolutely safe is in a committed, monogamous relationship," Orth said.

Next week there will be a table in Kirby sponsored by the Student Health Advisory Committee, a group of students who are promoting a healthy environment for the students at UMD.

"We present a public viewpoint, not a moralistic stand," said Steve Reycroft, a member of the committee. "Our goal is to educate and elevate awareness."

Information about "saying no," STDs, safe sex, AIDS, and birth control will be given out in brown bags at the table.

For more information, contact the Health Clinic at 8155.

Upstairs Kirby now caters to studiers

Molly Granse
Staff Writer

Bob Dylan's lyric, "The Times They Are A Changin'," could not be more appropriate for UMD this year, particularly for Upstairs Kirby.

Upstairs Kirby has now changed to become an open seating area for studying, eating and socializing, instead of being a deli.

The deli on the third floor of the Kirby Student Center was opened last year to handle the overflow from the second floor cafeteria but just could not break even, according to Tim Bushnell, cash operations manager for the Food Service.

In order for the Upstairs Kirby deli to break even it had to bring in $350 a day profit. Bushnell said the only quarter in which it did break even was Winter 1986.

He added that the second reason for the closing was because the space had to be shared with special events which did not allow consistent hours for the customers.

Joe Michela, administrative director for Auxiliary Services, said that selling food was not economical and there was not any money to be made due to the fact that not enough people took advantage of the food service.

Michela added that the serving equipment has been distributed throughout UMD with most going to the Residence Hall Dining Center (RHDC).

Upstairs Kirby was not opened this year until Sept. 17 due to the Plant Services' labor shortage.

According to Michela, this additional open study space will not be replacing that of the Fishbowl.

Upstairs Kirby will remain open the same hours as Kirby Student Center, Monday-Friday 7:30 a.m.-10:30 p.m. and Saturday 10:00 a.m.-10:30 p.m., due to liability costs, which KSC can not afford.

cessful dry bar operating called Sneakers, he added.

The remodeling of the Bull Pub is estimated at $100,000 to $150,000 said Neale Roth, coordinator of Student Activities.

Skibness left a floor plan with the congress to review, requesting that the SA draft a letter of support for this project. The plans included a solarium addition to let in more natural light.

Last Tuesday's Student Association meeting began with a speech by Chancellor Lawrence Ianni. He congratulated the 1987-88 SA members and then expressed his concern that SA continue to "play a meaningful part" on the UMD campus.

This seems likely since the SA, to spiff up their image on campus, is considering creating a public relations position. "We need to let students know who we are and what we're trying to accomplish for them," SA President Andy Santi said.

Applications will also be taken to fill the position of Student Representative to the Board of Regents.

Bull Pub from 1A

Second year student Roxane Hayden added, "It would be nice to see the Bull Pub turn into something like a dry bar and lounge. Since this is a dry campus and the drinking age is so prevalent it would be great to have a place on campus for students to relax and meet with their friends. They could even provide bands on Friday night for dancing."

KPB is interested in providing a socializing area that could also be used for studying when planned activities are not in session.

If you have ideas or thoughts concerning the Bull Pub area, contact KPB Chairman Scott Skibness at 726-7162 or stop in at the KPB office in the Kirby Student Center.

Regents from 1A

may be upcoming.

Also of interest, the UMD part of Strategy to Focus has been sent to President Kenneth Keller from UMD Chancellor Lawrence Ianni. Although specifics are confidential until President Keller has a chance to make his recommendations, most of Ianni's proposals will probably be presented to the Board of Regents at the November meeting in Minneapolis.

At that time, the proposal will be made public and the Board of Regents can accept the proposal as is, or send it back for corrections and revisions, including their own recommendations.

The Commitment to Focus is a plan to improve the standards of the University of Minnesota system academically and also decrease the enrollment levels. The Strategy to Focus is the individual campus' plan to help the Commitment to Focus.

The UMD Escort Service...Safety just a phone call away

Ron Nelson
Staff Writer

The campus escort service, in conjunction with Student Association and the Campus Police, is making an effort to keep UMD students safe from harm when they go out at night.

Walking without an escort could be taking unnecessary risks. It may range from harassment by drivers to rape and murder, said Tony Solin, head of the escort service for Alpha Phi Omega.

Solin said the escort service will walk anyone anywhere within a two-mile radius of the campus. But this limit is flexible, as are the escorts.

They can be reached from 8-11 p.m. Sunday through Thursday at 726-6100 or at their office located at Library 117.

After calling, wait for the arrival of an escort. One of the members of the Alpha Phi Omega fraternity will meet and escort you. The escorts carry identification to assure that they are escorts.

Their sister sorority, Gamma Sigma Sigma, also helps with the program. They will have a member at the office to contact an escort and record the time of the call, who made the call, where the escort will be dispatched to, and, upon return, what time the escort came back to the office.

Already this year there was an incident where an escort assisted a client.

A woman was being escorted to Torrance Hall when she was confronted by a man who jumped out from some bushes. Her escort, Brent Bullert, pushed the apparently drunk assailant aside.

After escorting the woman home, Bullert reported the incident to campus police.

Captain Harry Michalick said that officers searched the area, but the assailant was gone.

"The escort did the right thing by reporting the incident. Without the escort the woman probably would have been scared to death," Michalick said.

The escort service program was started in response to a sexual assault on the campus in 1979. Before the attack there was not enough interest in the project to start it and get the funding.

The campus police set up details for the service, and the Student Association provided funds for equipment and advertising needed to operate the service.

Both the Alpha Phi Omega fraternity and Gamma Sigma Sigma sorority are service organizations.

Bush: Just say no

When George Bush formally declared his inevitable candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination Monday, it brought reality to a fear. With no strong figure to clearly head the Democratic ticket, and with Bush as the Republican front-runner, he could very well win the 1988 election. The fear comes with the fact that, with Bush as president, the country may not be headed for any positive changes and could, instead, be another four-year extension of the Reagan years. We can't let this happen.

Bush said he would continue to support the contras in Nicaragua. The contras represent Reagan's backward ideas in thinking that democracy can be forced on a people. For any form of government to work, it must be accepted by a vast majority of the people it is to represent. How can a nation celebrating the anniversary of its constitution fund a military faction who is trying to prevent another country from living by its constitution without compromising its ideals? Funding for the contras must end, but if Bush gets in the White House there will be another four years of legislation for their support.

"I'm not going to raise your taxes--period," Bush stated in his declaration speech. This statement is too naive to be coming from one who would run a nation. Taxes are dependent on the economy: When the economy is good, taxes are stable; when the economy is bad, taxes go up. Saying he won't raise taxes will get him votes, but in reality the decision is out of the hands of any one individual. Veto all he will, the realists in Congress will raise our taxes if the economy makes it necessary.

In his story for the St. Paul Pioneer Press Robert S. Boyd said Bush made it clear "he would build on the Reagan record and not reverse it." We can only hope this "non-reversing" of the Reagan record won't include continuation of the Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI). While Bush made no mention of it, we can take its omission as a sign that Bush is being careful about touchy issues. (Bush also did not mention the Supreme Court nomination of Robert Bork -- a Reagan plan to maintain conservative control.) SDI represents all the foolish spending of the Reagan years; spending billions of dollars on a project that can only truly be tested during an actual nuclear attack. The mere idea that Bush may continue this project is reason enough to keep him out of the White House.

While there is not yet a candidate from either party that we could clearly endorse, Bush is one we definitely would not like to see win the Republican nomination, let alone the presidency.

Letters

Franklin: Quick to criticize

Editor:

I'm writing in response to Tim Franklin's article on Homecoming that appeared in last week's STATESMAN.

Being the chairperson of this year's Homecoming committee, I feel that there are a few statements that Mr. Franklin made that must be commented on.

First of all, Mr. Franklin wrote that no one knew who the candidates for king and queen were. There have been plans in the past to give the candidates more visibility but, because there were so few people on the Homecoming committee, these plans were not implemented. There were, however, over 600 people that voted for king and queen this year, so not everyone walked by the voting table. Mr. Franklin also failed to mention why everyone knew who John Schumacher was last year (I didn't). Maybe this information could help next year's Homecoming chairperson.

Second, the business community is more than willing to help out with Homecoming. This year Domino's Pizza, Ribbon Distributing, The Bulldog Shop, and others were very helpful. But to get in touch with area businesses, and organize a way for them to help, you must have people to do it. Again, there was low participation. This also implies to involving the alumni. They approached the committee this year, eager to help with the week's activities, but there wasn't enough time for the people who were involved to work with the alumni.

Finally, Mr. Franklin was correct in stating that only six of the 130 organizations on campus were represented at the first meeting of the committee. But, incidentally, Mr. Franklin, who was the representative for two organizations, was not at that meeting either. It is hard to get people to build floats and plan a parade when they won't even come to a meeting. One of the organizations that Mr. Franklin represented had to be asked to sit at a table for Homecoming--they did not volunteer to do anything. Maybe people should look closer to home before criticizing the whole campus community.

I don't think Mr. Franklin realizes all of the work that goes into organizing a week's activities. Considering the small number of people we had helping with Homecoming, I feel it was a success, and hopefully the first step in making this tradition a big event. I would like to thank those organizations that did help, and encourage the ones that didn't to begin planning something for UMD's Winter Carnival.

It is easy for people to criticize and tell how to make something such as such as Homecoming better, but until we get more people involved these ideas will remain just that--ideas.

Sincerely,

Jennifer Henke

Rape Card: Who's the sponsor?

Editor:

My question is this: How much money does the STATESMAN get for printing an advertisement soliciting a "Prevent Rape Card"? Whatever the amount is, it is not enough!! First, it is naive to believe a card stating one has AIDS would prevent someone from being raped. Second, AIDS is a serious issue and should not be used in a manner so low-lives like the Susan Corporation can make profits from it. Free enterprise and the First Amendment are both good things, however, the STATESMAN staff does have a choice in accepting what advertisements they pick to sponsor their paper. I would like to believe that, as a representative of UMD, the STATESMAN would choose not to support such immoral, unethical, and very pathetic advertisements such as this one.

What ever happened to the good old days? Days when a woman's place was in the home; doing laundry, cooking dinner and thinking up new ways to please her man.

Taking care of the kids, cleaning the house and clipping coupons to be a thrifty shopper. In short, the role which Jane Wyatt played in "Father Knows Best."

Days where a man's place was at work -- working hard to financially support his dependent wife and kids, figuring out new and better ways to crush the competition, and then coming home to be waited on hand and foot by his family.

Are these stereotypical days of yesteryear gone forever?

I hope so!

Will we never again see the likes of "Father Knows Best" or "The Beaver" in our society?

I certainly hope not!

With our society making such great strides on social, racial and sexual equality, the last thing we need is to revert back to such sexist stereotypes and attitudes.

This great social conflict called equality started as a concept with pioneers such as Phyllis Schlafley and Gloria Steinem who forged a new path for women to follow.

Because of hard work and dedication, the idea of active women in society is now becoming reality and is giving women a more positive image.

At the same time, however, the image of men in society is declining. What's happening is that stereotypical male and female roles in society are reversing.

Allow me to illustrate this point by making reference to a couple television commercials.

If you turned on the television just a few years ago, you would have more than likely seen a commercial which contained a John Wayne type man. A man who was tough, apparently uncaring and took no guff from anyone, especially a woman.

A woman, on the other hand, was portrayed as meek, socially repressed and someone who knew her place in society -- a welcome mat waiting to be walked on.

Boy, have times changed!

I was watching the World Series the other day when I saw a commercial completely opposite of the one I just described.

The man was sitting in the car apparently trying to figure out how to put the key into the ignition while the woman was outside the car talking shop with the mechanic.

This is not the only such commercial. Our surrounding environment is full of these messages. Messages which are telling society that it's okay and acceptable for women to be active seekers of executive white-collar jobs.

It's also okay for men to cry, show emotions and even stay home to care for the children, wash clothes, cook, and do the shopping.

These television ads are even telling us that it's normal for men to turn into mindless masses of flesh whose only concern in the world is ring around the collar.

Sound familiar? You bet! Men in our society are suddenly being thrown into stereotypes typically held by women and vice-versa.

This is not only a great victory for women, for they are finally gaining the equality which they have fought so dearly for, but it is also a hard blow for men.

Why is this creating a downfall for men? Because this new equality being produced is actually turning into a reversed inequality. Once again, let me illustrate my point.

When a man is chosen over a woman for a job simply because he is a man, people scream that it's sexist.

women are being chosen over men for jobs simply because they are women. Is this not the same injustice? The same inequality is being committed, yet there are no fingers being pointed at people for being sexist in this situation.

How's that for social equality!

Not only are the women in our culture catching up to men, but they are even surpassing men in some aspects. The downfall of men is that they don't seem to care that this inequality is happening.

What is causing this apathy among men? I suppose that men figure since women have been mistreated for so many years, they will allow the women to savor their moments of glory -- humor them, if you will. Or else, it's something which men feel obligated to do as a sort of penance, to make up for all the injustice done in the past.

What's that you say? What does all of this mean? What kind of male chauvinist is this guy?

I am in full support of equal rights. I feel that one of the greatest injustices in the world has been the repression of women in our society.

What I am against is role reversal. It's not equality when people receive special treatment just because of gender.

It is also my opinion that most of the recent battles and confusion over equal rights is a bunch of hog-wash. Right now we have both men and women demanding equal rights, but only to a certain point.

Men are in full support of equal rights, up to the point where a woman threatens his job.

Women demand equal rights in every aspect of society, up to the point of being drafted.

A line must be drawn.

Equal rights will not be achieved simply by switching roles, nor will it be achieved by only partial participation of both parties.

I look forward to the day when men and women can truly be equal.

True equality, however, will occur only when men and women are looked at as equal in all aspects of life, not just in randomly or conveniently selected facets.

Why should he get it over a woman simply because he's a man? It's unfair!

"Men in our society are suddenly being thrown into stereotypes typically held by women and vice-versa"

-John Pothast.

I agree, it is unfair.

1,000,000th visitor at Glensheen mansion

Michele Ranum
Staff Writer

As we all know, thousands of visitors come to Duluth and go up the North Shore this time of the year just to watch the leaves and relax. One of the main tourist attractions along this span is Glensheen Mansion, past home of Clara and Chester Congdon. The estate has been open for tours for the past nine years, and on Monday, Oct. 12, the mansion saw the one-millionth tourist pass through the gate.

At about 11:00 AM, an average sized tour left the ticket house on the way to the main house. Right upon entering the back door, a woman was snatched from the tour, and congratulated upon being the lucky tourist. Director of Glensheen, Micheal Lane, and the chancellor of UMD, Lawrence Ianni were waiting at the door to inform her of her good fortune.

Jodene Wollmering from Minneapolis, was quite surprised at her luck after being told she surpassed the millionth-person mark at the estate. She was visiting from Minneapolis with Brent Schelton and was up for a long weekend. After she was told, she and Schelton went up to the terrace outside the back side of Glensheen where they were greeted by the dean of Fine Arts, Gloria Brush, and other staff members of Glensheen.

Wollmering was last in Duluth with her family when she was 10 years old. Having seen many of the sites in Duluth already, she still didn't have time to see others she was really interested in. However, being the millionth guest at the estate enables her to see much more. In winning, Wollmering and a guest are entitled to complimentary passes and special deals on many Duluth attractions.

Wollmering, and a guest, are entitled to two nights lodging at The Mansion, a "bed and breakfast" type hotel right next to Glensheen. She also received passes to The Depot, S.S. William A. Irvin, The Duluth Zoo, a gift certificate from Bayfront Carriages, a dinner cruise from Duluth-Superior Excursions, tickets for the summer repertory theatre at the Marshall Performing Art Center, special discount coupons for gaming at Fond-Du-Luth, and finally, a dinner in Glensheen's formal dining room for up to 20 people.

Obviously, with a million people going through within nine years, there is something to see. The home was built over a three year period from 1905-1908 for Clara and Chester Congdon and their children. At the time of construction it cost just over $750,000 for the buildings which included the main home, the gardener's cottage and the carriage house.

Chester was the assistant U.S. attorney in Minnesota from 1881-1886, and also served in the state legislature from 1910-1913. Chester made most of his fortune through business investments, many of which dealt with the mining industry. He was successful in many things. Unfortunately, he was only able to spend eight years in

Theater's costumes challenge student designer

E. Vincent Yaroch
Staff Writer

Deep in the heart of the Marshall Performing Arts Center, in its own little corner of the building, is the costume shop. Preparation and construction of over 100 costumes and accessories for the upcoming musical, Guys and Dolls, have kept the shop's sewing machines humming.

Along with sets and lighting, costumes become an integral part of a show's production. All of the technical aspects combine to create a desired visual impact on the audience. Cooperation of the designers of set, light and costume is crucial to the success of the production. Costumes can clash or fade away with a poor choice of set color. Also, they can lose their texture, line, or color altogether with inadequate lighting.

PROLOGUE: The curtain opens on Wanda McGuire, costume designer for Guys and Dolls. McGuire is a senior in her fourth and final year at UMD. She had no plans to involve herself with the theatre when she graduated from Aitkin High School in 1984. Originally, she had hoped to become a chemical engineer. "I was interested in math, chemistry, and music, but I ended up in theatre," McGuire says with a laugh.

A prolific seamstress with 14 years of experience, McGuire decided to join the costume shop for the 1984 Minnesota Repertory Season at UMD. During that summer, she became interested in designing costumes of her own. A couple of classes later that year and she was designing the costumes for her first production, The Fantastiks. The following year she handled the costume chores for End of the World. Last year McGuire designed for the award-winning Home-steaders. This year she has tackled the monumental task of designing the many costumes of Guys and Dolls.

ACT ONE, SCENE ONE: Designing for the musical began in June for McGuire. She first read the play without injecting any preconceived notions. Then she read it again and again, conversing with the director, Ann Bergeron, about the characters and particularly the style of the show. As it turned out, McGuire was in Utah over the summer and was limited to detailing ideas over the phone.

Once formal production conferences began, they continued for seven weeks. Sketches and costume renderings were brought forward and discussed. One specific idea that surfaced was aimed at the problem of introducing the main characters to the audience, while keeping them separate from the other characters. McGuire addressed that issue by deciding to keep everyone's costumes in a neutral, black and white tone until the major characters appeared, wearing colorful costumes. After seven weeks of meeting, the ideas were sent to the shop for actual construction of the costumes.

The style of the show is set in the late '40s, and authentic clothing patterns from that period were pulled from a file and used. The clothes the patterns produce are distinctive of that period of time, with large padded shoulders and narrow waists. McGuire explains, "The costumes are stereotypical. By that I mean, what the audience first sees should be a representation of the character's personality."

ACT ONE, SCENE TWO: The costume budget for Guys and Dolls is around $1200. The majority is spent on fabric, while hundreds of accessories (trims, buttons, shoes, hats, etc.) also needed to be purchased.

The biggest challenge McGuire faced was keeping everything straight. "The whole show is in my head, beginning to end. If someone comes up and asks, 'Does this costume have a belt?,' I can answer right away if it does or doesn't."

Another challenge is keeping any one costume from drawing unintended focus. For example, a costume styled in the '20s or '80s will distract an audience if the show is set in the '40s.

INTERMISSION: Although costume designers carry ideas and deadlines around in their heads throughout the day, McGuire points out, "You have to do other things besides thinking about the show, so that when you go back to it, it's fresh."

Other things?

"Oh, sleeping and eating."

Next week: Act two?

Wanda McGuire, the costume designer for "Guys and Dolls," has spent many hours planning, designing, and constructing various pieces of clothing for the play.

McGuire holds four of the dozens of renderings used in the designing of the costumes for the play.

Now that you've gotten into Minnesota, IBM can help you get more out of it.

The road to graduation is paved with term papers, lab reports, cramming, all-nighters and, of course, exams.

To ease that journey and awaken your professors to your exceptional abilities, we suggest the newest member of the IBM® Personal System/2® family: the Model 25 Collegiate.

It's a high-powered personal computer with advanced graphics capabilities, designed to fit on your desk without adding to the clutter. And it comes with a generous 640 KB memory, two 3.5" diskette drives and an aid package every student can appreciate—a big discount, plus Microsoft® Windows® 1.01, Write, Paint, Cardfile, IBM DOS 3.3 and a mouse.

Pop in the load-and-go diskette and your Model 25 Collegiate is set to help you write and revise long papers and illustrate your points by combining words and graphics. So your professors will draw favorable conclusions about your work.

For more information on the Model 25 Collegiate, visit the IBM Education Product Coordinator on campus. You'll quickly learn how to get the most out of the IBM Personal System/2. IBM

Northern State next on 'Dogs' list

Mark Schiffman
Staff Writer

The division leading Bulldogs travel to Aberdeen, So. Dak. this Saturday to challenge fourth place Northern State College. With this being their eighth meeting in seven years, UMD leads the series 6-1. The Wolves are looking to rain on the 'Dogs' errorless parade.

NSC soundly won their conference matchup this weekend, walloping Bemidji State 59-12, and boosting their season record to 4-2, 1-1 in conference play. UMD themselves could do no wrong last Saturday, humiliating the University of Minnesota-Morris Cougars 56-3, giving them sole possession of first place.

Last season, NSC took second place in the NIC with a 9-2 record, their only conference loss was to the Bulldogs, a shellacking at that, 59-0.

The Wolves come into this weekend's game with a pass oriented offense led by sophomore quarterback Jason Landmark and his favorite target, fullback Mike Carda. In two games, the Landmark-Carda connection have racked up 422 yards and 5 touchdowns. Landmark is NSC's all-time leading passer -- he has completed 98 of 182 passes for 1,335 yards and 11 touchdowns.

Carda is their anchor in the backfield, rushing for 383 yards and 6 touchdowns, not to mention his impressive 9 touchdowns in only two games. The other man to watch in the backfield is halfback Ray DeYoung; he's rushed for 294 yards and 3 touchdowns.

NSC likes to use a pass control offense which means that they like to throw short and middle screens, they do not run the ball very often, but it has improved from years past.

First year head coach Dennis Miller said, "We are not a running team, we are a throwing team; that's where the emphasis is."

Miller said that his team is prepared for a physical battle.

"Duluth has great athletes at almost every position; clearly they are the favorites. We have to play without turnovers, with a lot of emotion, and maybe get some breaks."

Bulldog head coach Jim Malosky said that in order to win the game they are going to have to hold the Wolves to one or two touchdowns.

"We cannot get into a shootout because I'm afraid they can score a little bit too fast for us. They got 59 points and we got 56, and in a shootout it doesn't look like we would come out on top."

He also commented that their running game could not be overlooked, and that the key to their success vs. NSC will be how well they can control the Wolves offense.

The NSC defense has had some problems of its own this season, yielding an average of 275 yards per game. They are led by noseguard Randy Nelson and defensive end Mike Flakus. There is almost no problem with inexperience for the Wolves as they have 37 returning lettermen, while only graduating six. They have 10 returning offensive starters while the defense has 7.

For the 'Dogs, Malosky has completed over 50% of the passes he has thrown for 813 yards and 11 touchdowns and is a threat from the air as well as the ground. His favorite receivers are Dale Kraus, Tom Murray, Chris Westberg, Xavier Easterlin, and Mike Petrich. On the ground it's Malosky with Murray, Dean Borgh and Mike Louhi. They have depth in the backfield with Leon Berg, and Chip Richards.

Malosky Jr. said the key to successful finish this season will be to establish a running game.

"Our passing game is based primarily on our running game, and as it's been, we haven't been running that well. I think that will be a key if we can get it established."

Last week against Morris they made a stride in the right direction, running the ball 69 times for 330 yards, gaining 560 yards of total offense.

"We are going to win it."

This was how UMD's cross country head coach Eleanor Rynda answered when asked how she thought the men's cross country team would do at the Northern Intercollegiate Conference a week from this Saturday in Winona, Minn.

The Harriers go up against the likes of Bemidji State University, Winona State, Southwest State, Northern State of Aberdeen, and tough competitor, Moorhead State.

The women's team, also at Winona, is running in the Northern Sun Conference meet against the same schools as the men.

Rynda said, "The course at the NIC, NSC will be run in the woods which is a lot different than running on a golf course. It will be hard to run times close to those of last week. The course has more hills and the footing is not as secure as on a golf course."

Assistant coach Tim Magnuson added, "This week we will be running some practices at Hartley Field to simulate the same kind of feel for the course the runners will get at Winona."

The teams have a week off before the conference meet.

Rynda said, "We will adjust our training during the time off so the teams will be well rested and ready to go for next weekend."

Last Saturday at the Blugold Invitational in Eau Claire, Wisc., the men placed five runners in the top 25 with Nick Madison crossing first for UMD and eighth overall with a time of 26:09.

"Madison ran 27:55 last year (at Eau Claire) and this year he ran 26:09, so he dropped almost two minutes off his time," Magnuson said.

Rynda added, "That is the best anyone has ever run for us at Eau Claire. That is an outstanding race for Nick Madison."

Following Madison across the line were Steve Tekippe placing 14th, Tom Gries grabbing the number 20 spot, captain Steve Dandrea with the 21st, and John Jokela taking 24th.

The men's team finished fourth overall, which wasn't bad at all according to Rynda. "All the other teams we ran against last week were nationally ranked in either NAIA or

Thirty years of Malosky= thirty years of winning

Chad Knewton
Sports Writer

It was 1960 when a rugged young quarterback named Wally Fontaine led the Bulldogs to a 6-1-1 record and an MIAC championship. Twenty years later, a team of six all-conference selections, including brilliant running back Amory Bodin, outscored opponents 354-76 en route to an NIC championship and gained recognition as the finest team ever assembled at UMD. We now jump ahead to the 1986 contingent. Led by quarterback Jim Malosky, Jr. and running back Corey Veech, the 'Dogs posted an 8-1-2 mark only to see the entire season later erased because of player ineligibility.

These memorable seasons in the history of UMD football were all directed by the same man strolling down the sidelines with that familiar gait...a gait which to football fans for the past three decades has meant one thing...winning.

It was 1958 when Jim Malosky first arrived at UMD and became only the third football coach in the school's history.

Thirty years, three MIAC titles, three NIC titles, nine Coach of the Year awards, and scores of memories later, the winningest active coach in the NCAA Division II ranks remains virtually unchanged.

"I suppose he's changed with the times like everyone else," said wife Lilah, "but he's still as determined and excited about football as he ever was."

Whether playing or coaching, September has meant football to Malosky since 1942 when he got his first taste of organized ball as a freshman at Crosby Ironton High School.

After a very successful high school career, including all-state quarterback honors, Malosky was recruited by legendary University of Minnesota coach Bernie Bierman.

"Bernie truly was a legend in his own time," said Malosky. "He set the tone for me, and I really learned football."

In his first two years as a Gopher, Malosky, then an engineering major, played both basketball and football. He soon discovered that he and engineering weren't made for each other and that he didn't fit into the university basketball scheme. So, he settled into physical education and directed his efforts toward football.

As the starting quarterback for his final three years, Malosky compiled an overall record of 25-11. He fondly recalled a 27-0 victory over eventual Rose Bowl winner, Ohio State. "That was a great game for me and the team. We ended up 7-2 that year and they finished 8-1-1 to edge us out of the Rose Bowl."

It was these four years under football genius Bier-man that laid the foundation for a successful coaching career. But Malosky credits two other experiences with instilling the desire to make coaching a life long pursuit.

The first came while coaching an army team during a two year stint at Okinawa. "We were lucky enough to win a championship there, and it really wet my appetite for coaching."

The second came when Malosky was in his second year as a prep coach at Edina. He directed his team to a 9-0 record and a Lake Conference championship.

It was his success at Edina that led to the UMD offer in 1958. Admittedly, Malosky thought of the UMD position as a stepping stone.

"Sure, I considered it a move up the ladder, but then I started a family and wanted to settle down. Not only that, I enjoyed it."

Malosky inherited a 2-5-1 team from Lloyd Peterson, a pioneer in UMD football who had served as head coach since 1931.

"We went through about 70 players that year," Malosky recalled. "The 35 that stuck with me, though, were really special."

Malosky also recalled predicting that the team would be a conference contender within three years. However, someone misquoted him and reported that the young coach predicted a conference championship within three years. Malosky's unspoken words proved prophetic as his 6-1-1, 1960 contingent yielded a welcome conference championship, an accomplishment which was repeated again in 1961.

The 1960 and 1961 seasons were special to Malosky for the same reasons that all championship seasons are special. "It's not the wins and losses, those you can get over. The most satisfying thing to me is knowing that the players are happy with what they've done."

Mrs. Malosky supports her husband's contentions about wins and losses.

"I'm sure some losses disappoint him," she admitted. "But he doesn't have time to look back. He just thinks about what's next."

The 1987 season is extra special for 57-year-old Malosky. Not only will he be celebrating his 30th year here, but he will also watch his son Jim, Jr. cap a brilliant career as the 'Dogs' starting signal caller.

"It's been enjoyable watching him play," said Malosky, Sr.

The coach quickly admitted that his son is better than he was, but added that players in general today are better. "They're much bigger and stronger now, and they're just as competitive."

Malosky feels that players today question things more than they used to but that's just part of the challenge of coaching.

What remains for a man with 30 seasons of winning football? Malosky responded simply to the question -- "another championship."

Expressing anger is clearly what Jim Malosky does best on the sidelines. Why is he so angry? Maybe because the team only beat St. Cloud 27-7. (1986)

Rhaya Tomberlin sets another ball during the NSC tournament last weekend. The lady Bulldogs went a perfect 6-0 and remain undefeated in the conference.

Putting forth a team effort to block the ball are freshmen players Robin Cromer and Shelly Held. Team efforts proved powerful as the Bulldogs won the game 15-1, 15-2, 15-2.

Huskies' hustle tops Bulldogs

Kelly Hanlon

St. Cloud defeated UMD in three straight matches last night in the UMD gym 15-9, 15-9, 15-11. This was the second victory the Huskies have taken from the Bulldogs during the 1987 season.

The Lady Bulldogs now enter the Central Missouri Invitational this weekend with a record of 25-6 overall.

Coach Micky Tierney put away her 200th win as head coach at UMD last Thursday, with an easy defeat of Northern State in 3 games 15-1, 15-2, 15-2.

The difficulty came in the preparation for the match, as the Bulldogs found it difficult to get fired up and intense when they expected to walk away with the match.

The 'Dogs dealt with the unorthodox play of the Wolves by controlling the portion of the game that they could -- namely their offensive passing and serving.

The Bulldogs, moving up in the NCAA rankings from 11th to 9th after an earlier defeat of St. Cloud State, easily won the Northern Sun Conference Tournament held at UMD last weekend.

They didn't lose a single game throughout the weekend and went on to finish in first place with a 6-0 record.

The Bulldogs began play Friday with defeats of Morris 15-1, 15-4; Northern State 15-2, 15-4; Bemidji State 15-10, 15-2; and Moorhead State 15-2, 15-4.

Tierney felt the match with Moorhead was the best played match of the weekend for the 'Dogs, with all around great play by all team members. The whole weekend was a group effort, with "no one player standing out heads

The Bulldogs then came out Saturday and continued their undefeated streak by beating Winona State 15-7, 15-13, coming back in the second game from a 12-6 deficit.

Coach Tierney wasn't overly impressed with the play of the Bulldogs in their first match, as she could see in the warm-ups that the intensity was not there.

She blames this partially on the home court advantage -- something usually considered to be just that -- an advantage.

Having the home matches means the team does not spend all its off-court time together, as is the case when on the road. Tierney feels this definitely hurts the team's preparation and play.

UMD won that match, however, and then went on to defeat Southwest State 15-4, 15-6 to take the tournament.

Aggressive play at the net as well as consistent passing throughout the tourney easily put the 'Dogs head-and-shoulders above the other teams.

Pucksters push for improvement

The UMD hockey team will be trying to regain their composure after dropping their first two games to a veteran Denver squad, and will travel to face the Northern Michigan Wildcats this weekend in Marquette, Mich.

The Wildcats, who finished fifth last year with a record of 18-21-1, are 0-2 so far this year.

Up front for the Wildcats are senior Rod Pointdexter and junior Phil Berger at the forward positions. The strength of the team is due to the likes of juniors John Goode and Darryl Olsen, sophomore Brad Werenka on defense and senior Mike Jeffrey in the net.

Northern Michigan lost most of their scoring last year with the graduation of All-American Gary Emmons.

UMD head coach Mike Sertich said, "We are going into Northern Michigan with the same attitude as we approach every game: try to do the best we can and let the chips fall where they may."

The Bulldogs dropped a tough pair of games to WCHA-favorite Denver last weekend in Denver. The Pioneers outscored the 'Dogs 7-1 and 7-3.

The only goal for UMD in Friday's game came in the third period with a shot from Darin Illikainen with an assist from Pat Janostin.

"Our main objective is to improve on defense. We cannot allow 50 shots a game, but what concerns me the most is the second and third shots that we're letting happen. We have to stop that."

UMD goalie Mike Cortes received 50 shots on goal while letting seven get past including a hat trick from Denver freshman center Rick Berens. The Pioneers' goalie Chris Gillies faced 23 shots and made 22 saves Friday.

The 'Dogs improved a little Saturday night with two more goals than the night before but not enough to top the tough Pioneers, who had seven.

Sertich said, "If we can improve this much from game to game this season we will be all right."

Denver wing Daryn McBride was the first to score with a shorthanded goal early in the first period. Bulldog freshman Shawn Howard answered Denver's first goal with one of his own to tie the score later in the period, but the tie was shortlived as Berens scored two minutes later for the Pioneers.

UMD tied the game again with a shorthanded goal from Barry Chyzowski, who took a pass from Bobby Alexander and put the puck underneath the diving Denver goalie, Gillies.

The Pioneers came out strong in the second, scoring quickly with a hard, low shot past goalie Meagher from the Pioneers' leading scorer last year, sophomore Dave Shields.

Controversy surrounded the Bulldog net as Jason Fairman scored for Denver after a scramble in front. Berens was lying over the top of UMD goalie Gordy Meagher and the Bulldogs protested the goal but the referee ruled that Berens had been pushed into the crease.

Finishing off the scoring for UMD was freshman Scott Keller with his first college goal.

Sertich said, "Cortes did not get a lot of help (Friday) but I thought he was spectacular at times. Meagher also did very well. There were a couple of shots he could have had but we left him without some help, too."

Sertich added, "The first night we were a little tight and hesitant at times, but Saturday night we played quite well. I thought we could have even won that game."

When asked how he thought the hockey team would fair this season Sertich said, "Did anyone ever think that the Twins would be in the World Series this year?"

List from TB

Malosky had yet another outstanding day passing for 230 yards and rushing for 42. The 'Dogs came out storming and never stopped to look back at the Cougars, because there was little UMM could do to stop the maroon and gold invasion.

Morris opened the scoring when they recovered one of UMD's only mistakes, a fumble, but had to settle for three points, instead of six as kicker Joel Beyer nailed a 46 yard field goal. It proved to be the only threat of offense from the Cougars the entire game. UMD retaliated on their next possession, when Malosky found halfback Tom Murray open in the end zone with a four yard strike.

The touchdown seemed to set the pace for the Bulldogs' one-sided afternoon, Malosky Jr. commented, "I think after our defense stopped them and they had to settle for a field goal, our offense knew we had to do the job, we came down and scored right away and took it from there."

Take it away they did, scoring 21 points in the second quarter, giving them a sound 28-3 halftime lead.

Malosky and halfback Dean Borgh both ran the ball in from the one yard line, but the real highlight came when Malosky unleashed a 34 yard yard pass to split end Mike Petrich, who ran the ball another 25 yards for the touchdown. The 59 yard scoring strike was the longest for Malosky as a Bulldog, and also completed a stretch where the 'Dogs scored on four straight possessions.

The third quarter, which was a nearly an hour long, must have seemed like an eternity, but for Morris players, coaches and fans it must have seemed even longer. The 'Dogs converted three of four Cougar mistakes into touchdowns, ending all hope if any for a Morris comeback. Fullback Mike Louhi rushed 16 yards to cap a 65 yard scoring drive on the 'Dogs' first possession of the second half. On the first play of the ensuing series, All-NIC quarterback Mike Peterson fumbled the ball which was recovered by Jim Amundson. Without hesitation it was air Malosky again, hitting split end Chris Westberg for a 36 yard scoring strike on their first play of the series.

But the nightmare did not end there for the Cougars. On the kickoff which followed Westberg's goal they again coughed up the ball and was recovered by Amundson. The error set up a four yard touchdown run from Murray.

UMM punt returner Shane Pribyl could not hold on to a Petrich kick and the ball rolled into the endzone where it was recovered by the 'Dogs' Dave Lindstrom for yet another touchdown and a 56-3 whitewashing of Morris.

Coach Malosky commented, "We got on a roll and they got desperate and made a couple key mistakes, we had some tremendous breaks. Those are the little things that are sometimes unnoticeable but can turn a game around and all of a sudden multiply. You can't say that we are 53 points better than Morris by any stretch of the imagination, things just have to go your way to get a score like that."

Malosky and Louhi were named as the Offensive Players of the Week. Malosky gained 272 yards of total offense and is now number two in career total offense at UMD with 3,007 yards, trailing Bruce Grant by only 850 yards with five games remaining. Louhi, who missed some games earlier in the season with a ankle injury, rushed for 47 yards and a touchdown. Amundson, playing in place of injured linebacker Craig Potocnik, Flash back to game four of the American League Championship series, Tom Brunansky running on his way to first tries to avoid the tag of Darrel Evans. In so doing he misses first base, obvious except to the first base umpire who awarded first base to Bruno. Should Brunansky quickly point out to the umpire that he didn't touch base and is out, or should he take his base knowing he was out?

Some would think it a totally irrelevant question, saying that it's up to the umpire not the player.

What brings this all to mind is an opinion I read in the Sporting News, in which a fan suggested that in a way, players are cheating by taking things that aren't fairly earned.

This at first glance seems to be a fair assessment, but then think of some of the possible outcomes of such honesty.

Think back to last spring's NBA playoffs when Boston's Robert Parish hit Detroit's Bill Lambert with a right hook that Mike Tyson would be proud of. The refs didn't see the foul, and didn't make any call. If they had, Parish would have been ejected. Writers Embellishment: So Parish immediately runs over to the scorer's table, signs an affidavit that he did punch Lambert with malicious intent and therefore, should be ejected from the game. After the game, he comments that he just couldn't go on because of the guilt he would have been carrying on his conscience and that he feels much better knowing that he did the "right thing".

One more. The Twins and the Giants meet in the World Series and are tied at three games apiece. The Twins carry a 3-2 lead going into the bottom of the ninth and send ace reliever Jeff Reardon to the hill. Reardon struggles giving up a leadoff double to Kevin Mitchell, but then strikes out the next two batters he faces. Two out, one on, and a three-two count to Jeffery Leonard. Reardon leans back and fires, which Leonard drives hard ground ball up the middle to Kirby Puckett. Puckett guns the ball to catcher Tim Lardner, who is doing a fine job of blocking the plate. Lardner puts the tag on Mitchell. But to the dismay of 50,000 plus Twins' fans the umpire calls him safe and it looks as if extra innings are in order. Writers Embellishment: But, Mitchell struggling to clear his conscience calmly walks over to the home plate umpire and points out to the umpire that if he looked at the skid mark of his slide that there is no possible way he could have touched the plate and so therefore, he is out and the game is over. The Twins win their first World Series title in 26 years.

It just seems far out to expect an athlete to go to that extent to clear his/her conscience. The fan speaking out in Sporting News may be close to making a valid point, but I wonder if he calls the police to notify them when he feels he has broken the law?

Speaking along the lines of ethics, Vikings quarterback Tommy Kramer may be able to beat his latest drunken driving charge.

Word has it that the eating establishment Kramer was at notified the police, as they do in all cases such as his, that they had a customer who possibly had too much to drink. Apparently, the restaurant has a policy of informing the police when one of their customers has had too much to drink so that the police can meet the intoxicated patron at the door and deter him or her from driving. Strong rumor has it that this was done, but instead of meeting Kramer at the door, the police instead waited until the quarterback was in his car and driving. Sounds like trumped-up charges, and if this rumor should hold to be true, Kramer may have a strong enough defense to beat the rap.

Whether Kramer eludes chargers or not, he should still consider giving up the keys to his car when drinking.

The men's basketball team will start its first directed on-court practices of the year this week. So, if you are in the Phy Ed building and think somebody is yelling at you, consider how well the voice of Coach Dale Race carries.

NCAA Division III. Hopefully our team will be nationally ranked soon."

"The women ran as a pack for the first time this year," Rynda said "If we can just move that fifth runner up, we will be doing great."

Michelle Moren crossed the line first for the lady Bulldogs and 28th overall with a time of 20:06.

Rynda commented, "Our fifth runner for the ladies, Shannon Wright, really ran well. That is her best time of the season, by far. She moved way, way up."

Rynda added, "Each of the women ran their individual best times of the season and all but two of the men ran individual best times. With those kinds of improvements, we are getting tough."

Peterson strives to keep Rec Sports supervised

Lisa Konn
Staff Writer

It is time to meet another supervisor. This week we will be talking with Katie Peterson. Katie is a junior from Hastings, Minn., where she was involved in swimming and cross country skiing at Hastings High School. Peterson has recently made an agonizing decision to change from a health education major to a physical therapy major. That same debate has crossed the minds of many of us at some time or another.

Katie started in Rec Sports in the fall of '86. She, like Shawn Tresselt, began as an inactive supervisor. During last Fall Quarter Katie trained-in for the supervisor position by working clerical for Rec Sports.

Peterson applied for the supervisor position hoping to gain some practical work experience and to supplement her budget. She was not quite sure what the job entailed when she applied, but she wanted to work with people and was definitely interested in becoming more involved in the Rec Sports program. Katie has done just that. After a year of supervising, she wonders if she is in over her head sometimes, but says she would never give it up. She said she "likes the responsibility." I gathered that when Katie has more to do her time is better organized and her final product is a better quality. She likes being active and she enjoys working for Rec Sports.

Katie sees her position as a supervisor in Rec Sports as that of a mediator. She feels that she is a go-between in connecting the students to the Recreational Sports administration.

"They (the directors) are not as visible as we are," replied Peterson. She is a problem solver for her peers and answers the questions of the students.

Peterson is involved in the intramurals. She is in charge of scheduling volleyball for this quarter. This entails leagues, tournaments, and officials scheduling. In the past year she has also been involved with football and tennis scheduling. She thinks that by dividing the responsibility by sport, it makes the job more well-defined. Although, good communication between the supervisors is necessary in order to keep a hand in the other programs.

Rec Sports is an important part of the university experience. It gives the student a casual or a competitive outlet, depending on their individual ability.

"Learning isn't just in the classroom," said Peterson.

"It's a great way to take a break from studying and an excellent way to meet people."

She feels intramurals are sometimes given too much attention and admits that it is tough to be objective, since her responsibility lies with intramural sports.

"Maybe it (intramurals) is more visible than other programs and some other programs do not get as much highlight when they deserve an equal amount."

Toasting in a new era at UMD

Jeff Chernivec
Staff Writer

Last Saturday, before the Bulldogs' homecoming game Chancellor Ianni conducted a dedication for the new Physical Education complex. The dedication was preceded by a ribbon cutting ceremony in the Sports and Health Center lobby. The dedication was excitingly interrupted by a series of five sky divers landing on Griggs Field, all of whom are UMD alumni. The festivities celebrated a complex which is now considered "comparable to any in the state."

The new PE facility includes a remodeled Physical Education building and an Olympic size ice arena. There is only two ice arenas of such size, the other located in Lake Placid, New York. According to Senator Sam Solon, the old facilities were "terribly inadequate and over-crowded."

The new complex now offers students the convenience of indoor, climate controlled ice hockey and broomball. No longer will students be forced to slop through mud during a mid-winter broomball game. Intramural hockey games will no longer be played in several off-campus locations. The indoor ice arena will also save Rec Sports money. The outdoor broomball rinks cost Rec Sports $5,000 to $8,000 seasonally to flood and maintain, which may surprise many after last year's mudfest.

The new changes in the PE complexes, however, are not without controversy. The new facility raises many questions. Many students associate the lack of study space and seemingly inadequate library materials to the new $16 million Physical Education complex.

Some ask "why has UMD spent so much money on Rec Sports when there is such a lack of study space?" According to Dick Haney, director of Rec Sports, students are taking this situation out of context. The money used to remodel the Rec Sports facility was granted UMD by the legislature for the sole purpose of remodeling the PE complex. Students lobbied the legislature several years ago for funds to revitalize the lackluster sports facilities. The efforts of those students have now paid off.

Intramural Rankings

As the season passes the halfway marker, Repo Men, last week's number three team in men's football, was dealt its first regular season loss in two years.

Bill was the team that beat them, and subsequently the team that moved into the top five in mens football is Love with a glove. In softball, the playoffs are almost over, but at the beginning of the tournament the seeds went like this: 1)The Twins; 2)Honeybears Big Hitters; 3)Arsonal; 4)the Dweebs; 5)BCN.

The University of Minnesota-Duluth Soccer Club did not really have a great weekend on or off the field. St. Cloud St. failed to show up for the four team tournament, so only UMD, North Dakota, and Arsonal (a Twin Cities team) were involved. Arsonal beat UMD 5-1 in the first game on Saturday, then went on to beat North Dakota 4-1. North Dakota came back and beat up on UMD 9-1 later Saturday. Sunday morning, Arsonal and UMD played again, with UMD losing 5-1 again. According to Soccer club member Joe Hettinger, "we weren't very organized at all, it was a mess."

Next weekend UMD plays host to Michigar Tech and UW-Stout.

The new gym will not be open for pick-up games or informal use for another couple of weeks due to the new bleachers being installed. However, the small gym, behind the new gym, is open and new baskets and a new floor have been put in that gym.

A reminder to all Twins' fans who are also involved in intramurals: Although everybody likes to have a couple beers during each Twins' game, you cannot show up for your intramural game after drinking to more to 7b

Mens Softball Tournament

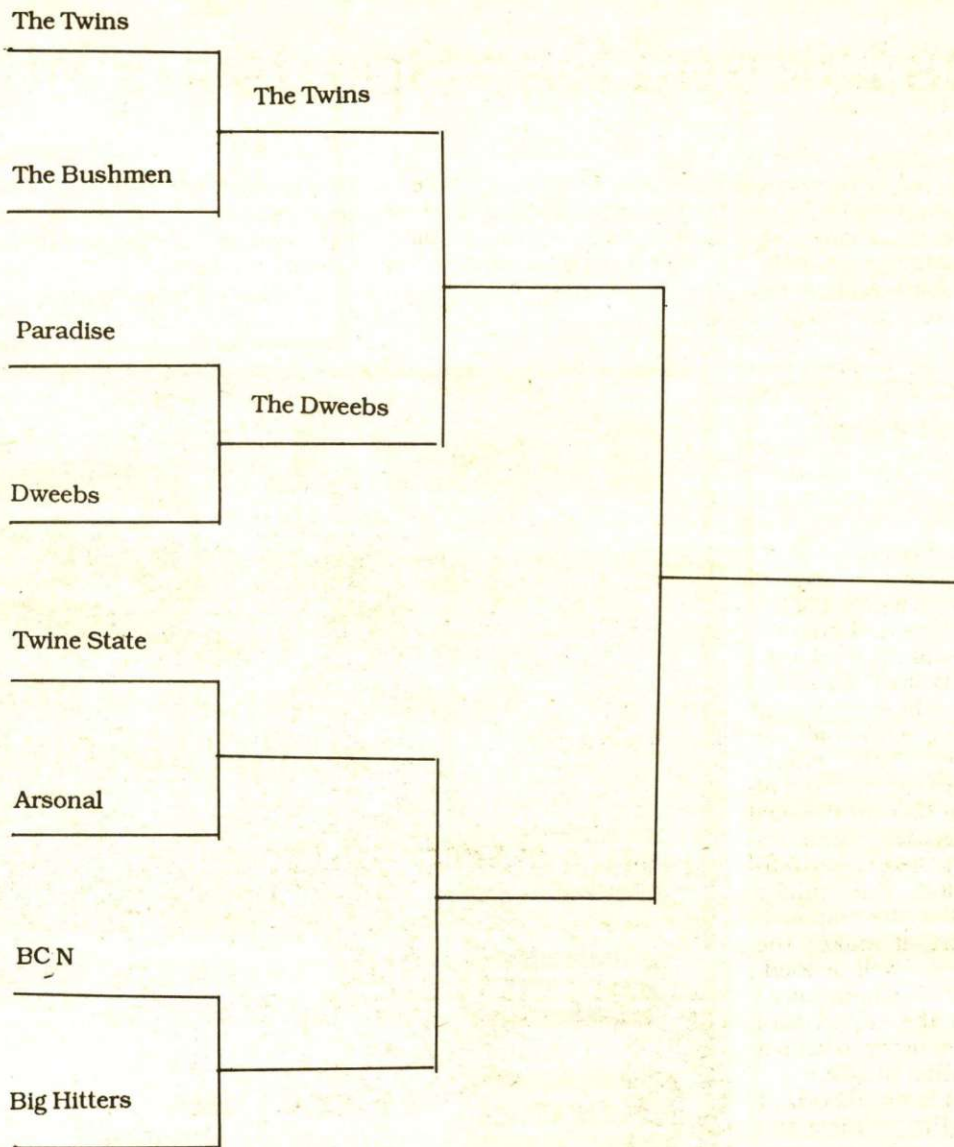

The fall intramural softball league's playoffs started Tuesday night on the three new Rec Sports fields.

The Twins, unlike THE TWINS!!, are the number one seed in the men's bracket after going 6-0 this fall competing in the most competitive league, the AA league. Although they are the number one seed, the consensus favorite in the tournament, which ends tonight (championship game time set at 8 p.m.), is Honeybears' Big Hitters, winners of last spring's tournament, the previous spring's tournament, the one before that....

Before you start talking about a Twins versus Big Hitters World Series, the Big Hitters had to get by BCN, the only team to beat the Big Hitters in the past three years in a late game last night. A team called Arsonal is also waiting in the wings ready to gain a berth in the finals in a tournament they are already describing as "classic." Arsonal played Twine State late last night with the winner moving on to play the Big Hitters-BCN winner today at 7:00p.m.

The Twins will be playing the Dweebs in today's other semifinal.

In the co-rec tournament, the championship game will be played at 6 p.m. tonight, following the five o'clock semifinals involving the Little Ones taking on the Canadiens, and Naturally Brewed battling Gee Donkers.

the extent that it may enhance injuries or unsportsmanlike conduct. Umpires and referees have been given strict instructions to "throw any player or fan" OUT if they believe he or she has been drinking.

The Alpha Cup will be at stake this Saturday when Alpha Nu Omega takes on Alpha Phi Omega at 2:30 p.m. on the Kirby Terrace. The traditional rivals take this game seriously, since the party is on the losing team. The 55-year series record favors Alpha Phi, 32-23. Tickets are available at Kirby Terrace and Dayton's.

The Minnesota Mile will be run next Friday, Oct. 23, on UMD's 400-meter track around Griggs Field. Sponsored by Coca-Cola, Twin Ports Broadcasters, Security Jewelers, and UMD Rec Sports, registration will be held at the UMD Fieldhouse at the outdoor ramp entrance from 6 to 7 p.m. UMD students, faculty and staff entry fees are free. The Twin Ports Youth Mile starts at 7 p.m., the All-City Mile at 7:30 p.m., and the Minnesota Mile at 8 p.m. All participants in the Minnesota Mile will receive a Minnesota Mile Ribbon, along with additional awards to the first-place finishers in all age categories.

showed fine defensive talent and recovered two Morris fumbles to earn top honors as the Defensive Player of the Week.

The defense, which saw limited action last weekend has been making its presence felt so far -- they have recorded 18 quarterback sacks, 7 fumble recoveries and 10 interceptions. The big news on defense however is the loss of two key players, Potocnik and Ron Viaene. Potocnik went down with a knee injury last week against Winona State.

Defensive coordinator Vince Repesh commented on his progress. "It's a day by day thing, and it's up to Craig on how fast he gets back; we'd like to see him back by the Northern Michigan game (Oct. 31)."

Also lost was freshman standout Ron Viaene, who was injured in the last game against Morris.

Viaene explained, "On a sweep I was cutting back, and I think one of the running backs cut blocked me, it twisted and I went right down."

He will not practice this week or accompany the team on their road trip this weekend. As of last weekend, Viaene was the 'Dogs' number one tackler with 45.

The Bulldogs have five games left so far this season, three of them are in their own conference, including this Saturday's game.

So you finally got a big fat date!

Happy Birthday

Love, Carrie & Nuala

Finally, a test you don't have to prepare for.

Well, you've done it. Figured out a way to avoid the real world and get your parents to subsidize your party habits too. Congratulations -- you're back in school. And you're probably feeling pretty smart. So let's find out just how smart you really are.

- How can I tell if I've chosen the right college?
 - I'm having fun and I'm far from home.
 - We're ranked in Playboy's Top 20 Party Schools.
 - A strong curriculum. (That means good classes.)
 - The friendly neighborhood Rocky's delivers free.
- Rocky Rococo® is:
 - A first class pizza joint famous for pan pizza by the slice.
 - A character in some old Beatles song.
 - A kind of architecture popular in the 1930's.
 - Bald in real life.
- You can get a slice of Rocky's pizza faster than:
 - Arnold Schwarzenegger and Sylvester Stallone can bag their legal limit of movie extras.
 - The Russians can find a way to cheat at any given international sporting event.
- You can eat one.
 - At Rocky's you can get:
 - A beer. (Assuming you are of legal age.)
 - Killer Pan Pizza by the pie or by the slice.
 - A fresh crunchy salad.
 - In trouble by flinging food at the patrons.
- Good pizza is:
 - Better than average sex.
 - Better than good halibut.
 - Better the next day.
 - Only a phone call away with Rocky's.
- The fact that Rocky's has free delivery is key because:
 - Studying makes me really hungry and really lazy.
 - If I have a really hot date, I may not want to leave my room.
 - My motto is, "Never let them see you eat."
 - I get a kick out of having people bring me things.
